CHICAGO SOUNDLY DRUBBED. THE GRANGE ATHLETIC CLUB MEN WON AT THEIR EASE BY 24 TO 0.

The East triumphed over the West yesterday on the Orange Oval, the Orange Athletic Club drubbing soundly. There were nearly three thousand specta-tors and nearly all were sympathizers of the Orange Chicago played a weak game, not being able to hold Orange at all, and making no gains. visitors played exceedingly dirty ball, rlugging and kicking and tackling foul. Several times they were anything wrong with the visiting team, but at last ruled Kohler, of Orange, off for slugging, when nce had ceases to be a virtue.

The game opened with a stendy forcing of the ball ser and closer to the Chicago goal, Chicago the ball once or twice on fumbles and downs, but failing to hold the Orange line in check. At last successive plays by Cunning and Marshall carried the ball close to the line, and Marshall plunged over and touched down. He also kicked the goal. In the next play, after an exchange of punts, Cunning got the ball under his arm and made a heautiful dodging run of thirty yards around the left end. Chicago got the ball on a fumble, and Brown punted out to centre field again. Hopkins and Coyne made steady gains, Orange got ten yards for offside play, Cunning plunged through centre to Chicago's ten-yard line. Two mass plays pushed the pigskin close to the line and Dyer plunged over and touched down. Marshall kicked goal. No other gains were made in the first half.

In the second half Orange forced the ball steadily toward the Chicago goal. When near there a fumble by Millard gave Chicago ten yards. A mass play or two followed, and then Buell broke through the centre and touched down. Marshall kicked the goal. Brown kicked off and Dyer made a splendid dodging run of fully fifty yards before he was downed, regaining all the kick-off. Then Bird punted thirty yards to the Chicago twenty-yard line. Slater broke through for ten yards, when stillman got the ball on a fumble. A pretty double pass gave Kohler a chance for fifteen around left end; he was then ruled off, although the fault clearly lay with the Chicago man, who had attacked him. Steady gains brought the ball to the Chicago line and Millard broke through centre and touched down. Final score: Orange, 24; Chicago, 0. TYNGS REMARKABLE GOLF. HE WINS THE MORRIS COUNTY CLUB'S

OPEN SCRATCH TOURNEY.

COVERING THE EIGHTEEN HOLES IN 86, HE MAKES A NEW RECORD FOR THE LINKS-

.The Morris County Golf Club's open scratch tournament yesterday brought out the largest field of players ever seen in a contest on the links in this ished was thirty-three. A remarkable shake-up in golfing calculations was caused by the victory of J. A. Tyng, with the phenomenal score of 86 for the eighteen holes. Mr. Tyng has been playing only since July, yet this score is the amateur record for the links, and has been surpassed only by the professionals Park and Dunn. From the first tee he drove directly upon the green, making that hole and four others in three strokes. All his drives were powerful and aimost faultless in direction, while his putting surpassed in accuracy and distance anything seen on the course before. By his victory he wins the handsome silver pitcher given by the club, becomes the present holder of the G. G. Frelinghuysen medal, the contest for which is limited to members of the Morris County Club, and takes Miss Nina Howland's prize for the best score.

Howland's prize for the best score.

A. E. Patterson, of the Richmond County Club, who won second place, with S8, played almost as well. He made the long "meadow" hole in 6, and the tricky "hoodod," where the track must be crossed, in 3. Jasper Lynch, of Lakewood, was third, with 25. His play was excellent throughout, and it was a bit of bad luck in getting under the fence on the approach to the tenth hole which spoiled his chances for a prize.

Few of the visiting players had any acquaintance with the Morristown course, but all pronounced it a thoroughly sport-giving one. The scores follow:

MATCH FOR THE JOHN REID MEDAL. W. H. SANDS PLAYS A REMARKABLE GAME AND

The seventh annual match for the John Reid medal and the championship of the St. Andrews Golf Club was held yesterday on the links near Yonkers. W. H. Sands played a brilliant game and won, his total of 180 strokes for thirty-six holes never having been surpassed by any amateur on the course. On his entire card only two eights appeared, and his score of 85 for the last eighteen holes is also a new amateur record. On his third round he made the gate hole in two. His ball struck the disk above the hole on the first drive and dropped "dead" on the margin, which, of course, enabled him to putt out on the next shot. The hill hole he took in the record number of four and the general average of his play was of the

L. B. Stoddart, who came in second, was bunkered twice in trying for the long hale in the second round, and missed two or three easy putts on the home green at the finish. These two happenings home green at the finish. These two happenings effectually ruined his score. James Park, the third best, played a ragged game in the morning, but regained his usual form in the afternoon, making the two final rounds in forty-five each. A. L. Livermore went to pieces on the last nine holes, but his previous work was good enough to give him fourth place, with 194 as total.

PLAY ON THE TUXEDO LINKS. P. LORILLARD RONALDS, JR., WINS BY THE AID OF A BIG HANDICAP.

Election Day at the Tuxedo Golf Club was celebrated by a large handicap tournament, open to members of the Tuxedo and Paterson, N. J., Golf There were nineteen contestants, which was a large showing, considering the important events at other golf clubs yesterday. P. Lorillard Ronalds, jr., the winner, gave the Handicapping great surprise by making a gross score of 101. His handleap of 30 points shows how his ability was regarded. By it his card was reduced to 71, a score impossible to beat. He is one of the golfers whose rapid improvement succeeds in baffling all calculations. Dr. E. C. Rushmore, the only scratch player, has at other times done better than he did yesterday. On his second round he sent his ball into the brook twice, each time losing a shot, and sacrificed another by driving out upon the railroad track. His style of driving is admirable, and track. H. Larkin, whose card recorded 96-11-35, played evenly, and was exactly the same on each round. Most of the other players are less experienced, and an inspection of their scores will give an idea of their general play. The first prize was a silver cup given by W. encounter during her long and tempestuous voyage sel, having as her skipper Captain Young, left Manila, the capital of the island of Luzon, in the Philippine group, nearly seven months ago. She was loaded with sugar and hemp, and her captain ooked forward to landing his cargo in New-York Harbor by August 1. The skipper had with him his wife and two daughters, and this one voyage has made them good deep-water sailors. erew was composed of Manila men, Lascars, as they are commonly known, and right good sallors they made, the captain said. Besides the captain's wife and daughters, there were twenty-one hands, all told, on the Troop.

The bark arrived here early yesterday morning and anchored in the stream, waiting for orders from her agents. A Tribune reporter went out in a small boat to the vessel to get the skipper's story the bark and announced his errand, Captain Young threw up his hands and exclaimed: "Come down to my cabin and open the log at random, and you will get an idea of it all, for one day was almost The reporter did as suggested, and the well-worn ogbook opened at August 7. The day began with fine weather, with the wind from the north-north-east. The breeze began to freshen, and the bark was going along under full sail. At midnight the wind had become a gale and all sail was taken in. Then the weather moderated until 4 a. m., when another northeast gale made the crew strip the vessel of all canvas save her lower topsail. . m. the wind had moved to the north-northeast and was still blowing a gale. At 7 a. m. Captain Young "wore ship" tonortheast, and the vessel was laboring heavily in head seas and the decks continually washed by tremendous waves. At a. m. the gale again moderated, and the crew shook out the reefs and made sail. By 10 a. m. the weather was fair and moderate, but the sea choppy One hour later the gallant bark was again soud-

"Now how's that for the record for one day? asked the Captain, as the reporter finished reading. "It's the most wonderful voyage I have ever made, and I'm no spring chicken, and I don't think there are many saliormen who have seen as many different kinds of weather in so short a time. It was simply gaies, caims, hurricanes, squalis, head-winds, cyclones, and the like, in rapid succession. Not only that, but we run into storms of hallstones, and the hallstones were as big as—well, as big as any other hallstones."

Not only that, but we ran into storms of halistones, and the halistones were as big as—well, as big as any other halistones."

During the first part of her voyage the Troop was delayed by calms and headwinds and seas that often drove her back over her course. On July 30, for instance, she ran into heavy gales and scudded back over her old track under reefed foresails. At 10 a m of that day the skipper had to "wear ship" to north-northeast to lay to, as the weather was too heavy to tack. Again, on August 11, he ran into a hurricance of unusual violence, and oil bags were heaved over the side, while the bark ran before the hurricane with the lee rail under water. Twenty-five gallons of oil were used in the efforts to calm the raging waves. For all that time the seas swept the laboring bark fore and aft, flooding the cabins, destroying a great part of the ship's stores, and sweeping away the dainties which the skipper had provided for the use of his wife and daughters.

During the entire month of August the vessel labored and strained against wind and wave to weather the Cape of Good Hope, and only on the last day of that stormy month did she succeed, and leave the dreaded Cape astern. Skipper and crew then heaved sighs of relief, belleving that their troubles were over, and they would make quick work of the northward voyage. So they did, for a time, but no sooner had they struck the Gulf Stream than their troubles began anew. They ran into the storms of the South Atlantic, and were buffeted again to and fro. Two furious hurricanes were encountered, one of which lasted thirty-six hours and veered all around the points of the compass. Still, when the Troop dropped anchor in the bay yesterday she looked little the worse for wear, save in what might be remedied by a few coats of palit.

Few such long and stormy voyages as that of the Troop have ever been recorded in sea annais, and

Few such long and stormy voyages as that of the Troop have ever been recorded in sea annais, and still fewer have been safely ended. The sturdy sailorman who commands her may well be proud of his vessel, his crew and of himself.

On June 15 ar Australian named James O'Brien, twenty-six years old, an able seaman, was found by several of his saipmetes lying in his bonk with his throat cut from ear to ear. He had lost much blood, and was scarcely alive. The wound was sewed and bandaged by one of the officers who had a turn for surgery and the sailor lingered for nine days, when he died. The Troop is known as an "easy ship and a good feeder" among sailors, and the only reason O Brien could give for his act was that he was tired of living.

MAY AFFECT VILLARD SECURITIES.

Chicago, Nov. 5.-A Milwaukee, Wis., dispatch says: "By a decision in the United States Court yesterday Dr. Herman C. Block gained a victory over the Milwaukee Street Rallway Company which may affect the securilles of the Villard syncate, which owns the street railway company Dr. Block got a judgment for $4,000 damages against the company before it went into the hands of receivers. One of the first acts of the receivers was to secure an order from Judge Jenkins which prohibited them from paying claims like that of Dr. Block. Judge zenkins has now modified the order and made the injunction read so it only prevents Dr. Block from interfering with the property already in the hands of the receivers. This means that unless Dr. Block's claim is satisfied thore with be two sets of receivers for the company. If the new receivers are appointed it will result in an investigation of the official methods of the company, as the petition for the new receivers charges fraudulent methods which were used to bring about the receivership. It was set forth that while the capital stock of the Milwaukee Street Hailroad, of New-Jersey, and the Edison Illuminating Company, all of which are in one company, amounts to $2.500.000, the company is bonded for $12,00.000. According to a statement by N. C. Payne, one of the receivers, to the Tax Commissioner, the property of the company is valued at $6.025,000. ceivers. One of the first acts of the receivers was

THE BUOY TOWING TEST SUCCESSFUL IN SPITE OF CONTRARY WINDS, THE TAILLES

KITES DO THEIR WORK WELL.

The experiments under the direction of Professor Woodbridge Davis and William A. Eddy, in which messenger buoys were to be propelled across the Kill von Kull near Bayonne by means of talland colms. Mr. Davis, the inventor of the buoys, was not present, owing to sickness, but the buoys were sent across the Kill by Mr. Eddy.

The first keeled buoy left the Bergen Point shore at 12:10 p. m., and reached the Staten Island Athletic Club beathouse at 12:29, thus making the distance of haif a mile in mineteen minutes with a light wind from the north. At the second experiment, at 2 p. m., the wind had shifted to the southeast, so that the start was made from the Port Richmond side, with a projectile-shaped buoy having no keel. The wind was so light that the buok, was half an hour in reaching midstream, when it was withdrawn. At the third experiment three tailless kites fixing from one line were rowed across to Port Richmond, but the wind declined so rapidly that Mr. Eddy was compelled to haul two of the three kites down into the boat, but the remaining kite, with a slight increase of wind, towed the buoy across to Bergen Point in seven minutes. The rowboat was handled by W. R. Vermilye, formerly commodore of the Atlantic Yacht Club, and by A. W. Rolker, owner of the yacht Alma.

Mr. Eddy says that but for the fact that the kites were tailiess and of extremely light construction, the experiments would have been destruction, the experiments would have been destruction, the calms and light winds. Among others who took part in the experiments were James M. McKinlay, of New-York; Henry L. Allen and Robert M. R. Allen, of Bayonne. tance of half a mile in nineteen minutes with a
